Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 02 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Clear, cold evening. Cloud thickening later, with rain. Milder Friday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any evening showers soon easing, leaving clear spells. Feeling cold, with perhaps a brief frost developing. Turning less cold as cloud increases from the west through the early hours, however, with rain or drizzle likely by dawn. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Friday:
Overcast with outbreaks of light rain and drizzle, but gradually becoming drier from the northwest through the afternoon. Winds becoming light, and feeling less cold compared to recent days. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Chilly weekend with sunshine and showers. Strong winds, perhaps coastal gales Saturday night into Sunday. Cloud and rain, chance of brief snow, spreading east early Monday, clearing to sunny spells.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.